WANAMAKER'S CONFESSION.

"At the banquet of the Business Men's League of Philadelphia," says the St. Louis Republic, "ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker is reported to have said that a new party in this country is a necessity. As the foundation of this remark, Mr. Wanamaker said to have called attention to the failure of prosperity to follow the election of McKinley and to have referred to the low state of political religion in the nation, brought about by unscrupulous bosses."

"Unusual significance must be attached to this expression of disappointment over the consequences of Republican victory and of severe criticism of conspicuous political methods, because they proceed from a Republican of so much prominence. It cannot be charged that Mr. Wanamaker is actuated by partisan animosity or that he does not know whereof he speaks. It would be interesting to have Mr. Wanamaker develop his attitude more fully. Let him disclose how far he is willing to go in the formation of a new party and what shall be its distinctive principles and aims. Let him disclose more fully what are the methods, as far as he knows, that have reduced the political religion of the nation to so low a standard."

The ex-Postmaster General has been a member of a very rich set of Republicans who are believed to have supplied much of the means with which the unscrupulous bosses to whom he refers have corrupted the standard of political morality. These rich men in the state of Pennsylvania have reaped the fruits of sowing by finding themselves so completely in the power of the machine they have built up that they cannot break their bonds. Their efforts to free their own state from boss rule have met with dismal failure."

Most talk of forming a new party to regenerate the nation is cheap and ineffective. The thing to do is to expose the evil whenever and in whatever form it may exist, and to use any instrument that may be convenient to defeat it. Mr. Wanamaker should begin the work of regeneration in himself and at home. Let him overthrow the bosses of his own party by joining with all who are opposed to them. Let him prove his faith by his works in the regeneration of Pennsylvania. With a repentant manufacturer's club and a purified Pennsylvania as a faith offering, the country will be disposed to accept Mr. Wanamaker's profession of political repentance and to join with him in the work of elevating political religion."

For the past four days a party of soldiers have been on a march eastward from Fort Sill, I. T., and back again, and they are expected to arrive today on their return. On the trip they carried no food but the "emergency ration" with which the war department is now experimenting, and which consists of 10 ounces of bacon, 16 ounces of hard bread, 4 ounces of pea meal or other soup material, and 2 ounces of coffee or half an ounce of tea.

Such experiments are necessary in management of the army, and it would also be a good thing if they could be more frequently undertaken in behalf of common people. It would also be a public benefit if by scientific experiment and research the people could be taught what to eat and how to eat, and could be taught what article of food to select with reference both to economy and health.

It is true that the Turks outnumber the Greeks, but so do the Spaniards outnumber the Cubans, and the latter have been fighting right along for the last two years. The number of Spanish soldiers that have been operating in Cuba foots up 273,287. But the Cubans could never have withstood such numbers in any other country than their own island of labyrinthine jungles.

The Wichita Eagle speaks of a man who was kicked by a horse as having both his "outer and inner skulls crushed." If that is the way Kansas craniologists are constructed it accounts for a good many things that have attracted attention in that direction.

PUPPY CRUSADER.

Leader of a Canine Band Which Bailed a Ship.

On one of our small coast survey schooners there was once a litter of puppies belonging to the captain, says the Youth's Companion. They were to be allowed to remain on board until old enough to leave their mother, but during their stay on board, what scurrying, scampering, frolicsome nuisances they were! The smartest and most energetic puppy of the lot was a little fluffy black and white spotted fellow called "Spottycus the Gladiator" and he led all the others in mischief. The puppies had their meals immediately after the ward room officers. Spottycus evidently considered it an infringement of his dignity to be relegated to the second table and so one day he led a crusade. It was a warm summer evening and the ward room officers were just being helped to their soup when there was a rush overhead, followed by a most fearsome succession of tiny barks. The officers looked up and beheld every one of the skylights overhead occupied by a little dog, reaching over as far as he could get, his mouth open and his little red tongue hanging out. The first lieutenant rose from his seat in horror, but, as if that had been the signal agreed upon, Spottycus slipped from his hold and plunged headlong into the tureen of hot soup. As in duty bound, the others followed his example, and for a while in the midst of sounds of breaking glassware, the thud and splash of falling bodies and a prolonged and horrible yelping, squealing and whining, it rained puppies. The next exploit was to fall overboard all together, being led, as usual, by the indomitable Spottycus, whose cheerful disregard of consequences was something appalling. They were rescued from a watery grave and wrapped up in hot towels, whence they escaped to eat a lot of poisoned flypaper. They became deathly sick, of course, and all that night had to be attended by two of the officers and most of the crew. After this they were sent ashore and the ship adopted a menagerie of kittens, having found puppies beyond control. Remembering the effect of poisoned flypaper on the digestive organs of small animals the officers threw away what they had of this and lay in a stock of the sticky kind. This, however, was hardly an improvement, for the kittens would go to sleep on it, and, waking to find their movements hampered in some mysterious manner that savored of witchcraft, they would give a wild yell and plunge up the companion ladder, a frightened, scrambling, sticky mess of furry brown paper.

SPURIOUS COINS IN SILVER.

They Are Being Put in Wide Circulation.

The fact that counterfeit silver coins containing more silver than the government's output were being made and circulated has been confirmed by Andrew Mason, superintendent of the United States assay office in this city, says the New York Herald. Coins of the size, shape and general appearance of the legal tender dollar have been in wide and successful circulation in this country, and coins have been received at the offices of the secret service in San Francisco, Chicago and Buffalo, which were found to be spurious by their excessive weight and a defective milling process. The other features of the counterfeit coins were well executed and baffled detection except on close inspection. The profit in using even silver in counterfeit coins can be realized when one considers that silver bullion is worth today 65 1/2 cents an ounce, or 480 grains, and that a silver dollar contains 412 1/2 grains of silver. The head of this successful and clever band of counterfeiters is believed to be a man who was an under superintendent of a silver mine in Montana, who was well known for his daring and cleverness. In a San Francisco saloon one night about two years ago he declared that a silver counterfeit could reap a harvest by using the genuine metal in the coins he turned out. Two men, who were known to be San Francisco crooks, were with him. There were two San Francisco detectives present at the time and the miner was followed to Montana, where he disappeared and has since been lost sight of. The secret service agents in Chicago received information that a counterfeit plant was in operation in Montana and that the coins were being circulated widely in San Francisco, Chicago, Buffalo and New York. A man named Schuyler was arrested in Buffalo in March, 1895, for passing counterfeit coins. He was convicted and sentenced to a term of imprisonment. A San Francisco crook was arrested shortly after charged with being implicated in the output of the spurious coins, but no evidence could be procured against him and he was discharged. Since then the secret-service detectives of several cities have been looking for the Montana miner and his two companions.

No Judgment from Experience.

Sunday School Superintendent—Can any of you tell me why Sunday is called a day of rest? Little Dick (holding up his hand)—I kin. It's 'cause we get up early and hurry through breakfast so's to dress in time for Sunday school, and then hurry to Sunday school so we won't be late, and then skip inter church fore the bell stops ringin', and then go home to dinner and get fixed up for afternoon service, and then get supper an' go to bed so pa and ma can get ready for evening service. That's all we do.—New York Weekly.

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled."

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-around family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. May Johnson, 308 Elder Avenue, New York City.
